

Rick & William

What would you say to space cowboys raising your child! Ok really we are just Star Trek and Star Wars fans that also ride horses but it sounds fun right? At any rate I think a nurse and a candy maker are pretty good choices for parents and hopefully you do too. We are firm believers that you can be whoever you want to be and do however many things you want to do and we hope to instill that in our children.

When we first started talking 5 years ago we discussed the things we had in common and our deal-breakers. Having children was top on our list, we have both always wanted to have children and didn't want to date anyone that didn't. Once we married we wanted to make sure Rick was done with school and our life was stable before adding children. Now Rick is a nurse, William works in a candy factory and we love our life in the country, our families and our animals, the only thing missing is children. We have a wonderful support system of family and friends to help us along the way. Rick's best friend growing up was adopted, William's brother has an adopted daughter and he has cousins that were adopted. Our family treats everyone the same and you would never guess any of them were adopted unless they told you. Any child we would be fortunate enough to adopt would be treated the same and showered with love. William has a large family that all live fairly close and lots of cousins for our children to grow up with.

We live in a rural community on a small farm in the country. We raise horses, chickens, goats, rabbits, ducks, geese, peacocks, quail, a bunch of barn cats and 1 house cat. We love to garden and raise as much of our own food as we can. Our horses play a big part in our lives and our family's lives. We go trail riding and take the horses camping in a national forest with William's parents along with some of our friends at least once a year. What kid doesn't want a pony?? I know I did! We can't wait to teach our kids how to ride and hope they love it as much as we do.

We hope we have given you enough information to interest you in finding out more about us and possibly give us the chance to raise your child. We can't even begin to know what you are feeling or going through and don't want to give to you the same speech you have probably read countless times already so I will end this with some final thoughts.

You have embarked on a journey that has led you here and hopefully we are a right fit in the things you want for your child. We are prepared to be involved as little or as much as you want us to be during the pregnancy and are open to keeping you updated on your child as they progress through life. We will love your child whole heartedly, unconditionally and try to provide as many opportunities for them as possible. We do want to thank you for taking the time to read our profile and if you choose us we will be forever grateful for giving us the one thing we can't have on our own, a child to love, but even if we don't seem like a good fit, you should still look at our photo book because there are some pretty cute photos of our animals.

May the force be with you,

Rick and William
