

Thank you so much for reading this letter and considering us as adoptive parents for your precious baby. Even though we have never met, we are amazed at the strength and courage it takes for you to choose adoption. Please know that we are praying for you through this process, regardless of whether that leads you to us or to another path. Our names are Kyle and Ashley and we know first hand how amazing adoption is. Unable to have children, we began fostering five years ago and met our son. We fell in love with him the moment we laid eyes on him. It took a long time for us to know whether or not he would stay, but when we received word that he was ours forever it's felt like Christmas everyday after. We continued fostering after Leo's adoption, but after a long journey of loving children that have come and gone our hearts long for another child to become a permanent part of our family. Leo is beyond excited to become a big brother and prays every night for a baby brother or sister. Our hearts are so ready to share the love our family holds with another precious member!

To let you know a little bit about us we have been married for ten years. Ashley works for a local nonprofit and is pursuing a master's degree to provide counseling for children. Kyle holds a full time job with plenty of home time. We are Christians and attend a church regularly with a strong children's ministry. We have a large extended family that are very involved in our lives. Our favorite thing by far is to hang out together and find new adventures to explore including local children's museums, zoos, fairs, the movies, parks, GRANT'S FARM, children's community events, etc.. We love to spend time outdoors walking, riding bikes, or inviting friends over. We love to camp out in the backyard, chase fireflies, hang out in our backyard clubhouse, or take day trips to Mamaw and Papaw's house.

Our house has a large yard and is located in a small and safe subdivision on a dead end street perfect for outdoor play.. Our neighborhood is primarily young families. We live in a small rural community that holds many community events including Breakfast with Superheros/Princesses, Family Fun Nights, Townwide Easter Egg Hunts, etc. and always attend those events. We want so much to spend these moments with a new precious addition to our family, but our hearts also want so much to find adventures that ignite passion and joy in our new addition. To rock them to sleep at night, read stories together, find activities related to their interests and to love them in every moment big or small.
